MOTHER PUNISHES CHILD BURNING LIMB WITH IRON

Probate Judge Studying What Disposition to Make of Incident Which Causes Consternation
Among Local Social Organizations;
Child Still Carries Wound

One of the most brutal and dastardly incidents brought to the attention of local authorities in recent months has been brought to light.
Judge E. A. Brown and Juvenile Officer L. M. Brown have been investigating an act of a mother, Mrs. Maude Schreckengast, 33, W.
Main-st., whom, it is charged, punished a 7-year-old daughter by forcing her to lie on the floor and placing a hot flatiron on her left limb.
It is understood the act occurred more than three weeks ago. The child is still carrying a mark on her limb where the iron burned the flesh.

CALLED TO COURT

When haled into court by Judge Brown Mrs. Schreckengast said,
"She wouldn't stay in the house so I punished her."
The disposition of the case is what is puzzling the court. Mrs.
Schreckengast cannot pay a fine. She has two other children smaller than the child she punished. Judge Brown and his juvenile officer are now studying what course to follow in handling the case as it is certain Mrs. Schreckengast should not go free after such an act.

GOVERNOR'S UTILITIES TAX BOOST PLAN MAY FACE COMMITTEE'S IRE

White Does Unexpected When He Suggests Utilities
Pay more in Order to Aid Raise Relief Funds;
Was Expected to be Last Ditch Fighter
Against Such Move

COLUMBUS, O., March 4.—
Governor George White faced a clash with the legislative taxation committee today over his unexpected proposal last night that the state utilities tax be boosted to raise relief funds.

The governor's proposal startled political circles where it was believed Mr. White would prove a last-ditch fighter against all suggestions that the utility tax be raised. A special session of the legislature is called.

FACES OPPOSITION
At a meeting with the special taxation committee today to discuss what could be done in poor relief at a special session, the governor was expected to encounter serious opposition on his utility tax plan.

Members of the special taxation committee in working out methods of obtaining new revenues at the last session were strongly against a utility tax boost. The governor was also opposed, at that time.

Headed by Senator Robert A.
Taft (R) of Cincinnati, chairman, the taxation committee planned to spend several hours in conference with the governor at the latter's request. Senator Taft said emphatically yesterday that the committee will not ask for a special session, "because that is not its function."

Transportation companies would be excepted in the boost in utility taxes as outlined by the governor.
He chose the utility companies, he said, because "this industry has suffered less in the current slump than any other."

WOULD TRANSFER FUND
The governor's program also included a plan to enable taxing authorities of counties, cities, villages and townships to spend their share of the gasoline tax and license tag funds either for unemployment aid or for direct relief.

Although his plan was prepared several days ago, the governor's scheme was a timely slap at a proposal made to him late yesterday by mayors of seven leading Ohio cities.

They proposed that the $20,000-000 in relief which appears to be needed be taken from the state's share of the gasoline and motor license tag funds. The governor said frankly he was opposed to diversion of the state funds.

By taxing utilities, approximately $6,500,000 could be raised for emergency purpose and additional

Author Presents Plan For Return

NEW YORK, March 4.—Charles Frances Coe, well-known writer of gangster stories, today suggested the "one and only way," in his opinion, that Colonel Charles A.
Lindbergh can expect to get his kidnaped baby safely back home.

The plan, put forward in an interview with International News Service, is as follows:
"Colonel Lindbergh should publicly offer a reward of $50,000 equal to the sum demanded in the ransom note left by the kidnaper providing the missing baby is safely abandoned at any point in the United States."

"The reward would be made payable in 30, 60 or 90 days. It would be payable to anyone who presented a piece of the baby's garments which the kidnaper could return before abandoning the child."

"Colonel Lindbergh would pledge to honor that payment of the reward and would be a private transaction with no danger of criminal prosecution."

Coe added that such wide publicity had been given the kidnaper that if the Lindberghs child was not in a public spot he would be found and returned immediately.

Russia and Rumania are separated by the Dniester river, now frozen, and it was across this river which the Soviet peasants tried to flee. A commandant of one Rumanian post revealed he had collected 132 bodies in his territory along the Rumanian bank.

Inaugurate U. S. President One Year From Today

By GEORGE HOLMES Copyright, 1932, by International News Service

WASHINGTON, Mar 4.—A year from today the hands will be playing up and down Pennsylvania avenue and they will be inaugurating a new president.

Conditions on this 4th of March are painfully different. The country is laboriously trying to extricate itself from perhaps the greatest business depression in its history. Millions of men are unemployed, and war-time measures have had to be undertaken to forestall an even worse state of affairs.

Whether Mr. Hoover can sufficiently overcome political handicaps that these conditions impose upon his candidacy, to again ride triumphantly down the avenue a year hence was a question in everyone's mind in Washington today.

The Fourth of March is a significant date in Washington. It is a day of reckoning, of appraisal, of looking backward and forward.

His pathway to re-nomination has been made easy. No one has any doubt but that Mr. Hoover will be overwhelmingly re-nominated at Chicago next June. Every possible opponent of any prominence, pro-

Quite a number of the parents and patrons of the Ashville schools attended the Washington Bicentennial program given in the school auditorium Monday afternoon, Feb. 22.

The students of the Ashville schools are preparing for a state test to be given on the "Life of George Washington." This test will be given some time during the week of Feb. 29th.

FIFTH GRADE

We made a survey of articles found in our grocery stores, this week. Each person was given one article to report on, some interesting papers were read.

The following numbers were given by the fifth grade at the Washington program Monday: Reading—Jean Brinker; Song—class; Trio—Bessie Hedges, Junior Walters, Ruth Courtwright.

The following seventh grade pupils have neither been absent nor tardy during the month of February: Clyde Alexander, Lloyd Clark, Ruth Courtwright, William Dolby, Byron Gulick, Richard Hoover, Martha Martin, John Myers, Wilbur Neff, Emerson Reid, Chester Rockery, Jr., Russell Sheldon, Jessie Tustin, and George Wharton.

The boys' basketball team elected Arch Ward captain of the 1931-1932 basketball season last week. The following boys were also recommended to receive the varsity A. Arch Ward, captain, Dick Wills, Don Cloud, Maurice Graham, Howard Wellington, Ralph Berry, Glenn Rinehart, Joe Higley, Otis Ford, and Guy Cline.

Our trophy case now holds an additional cup which was won by the girls basketball team last Saturday night when they decisively defeated the Scioto girls, the score being 26 to 18. This makes the second championship in four years for our girls and they won second place in each of the other two years. This is certainly a fine record for the girls and for Mrs. Morrison, the coach.

Due to sickness our February attendance has been the poorest of any month of the year. In the grades the best record was made by Mr. Smith's grade 7, the percentage being 93.4. Miss Petty's third grade had only one tardy mark during the month, which is a real record.

In the high school Mr. Martin's Seniors made the best attendance mark which was 93.6, and Mrs. Cooper's juniors the lowest tardy record with 4.

That's why Castoria is used by so many doctors and mothers. It is specially made for children's ailments; contains no harsh, harmful drugs, no narcotics. You can safely give it to young infants for colic pains. Yet it is an equally effective regulator for older children. The next time your child has a little cold or fever, or a digestive upset, give him the help of Castoria, the children's own remedy. Genuine Castoria always has the name:

Among those pupils in grade six who have an average of 90 or above and occupy seats in the "Perfect Arithmetic" row this month are: Helen Spindler, Roberta Cromley, Celia Jane Alexander, Clarabel Hoover, Helen Boyer, and Leroy Roll.

The Parent-Teachers Association of the Ashville schools held their meeting in the School Auditorium, Thursday evening Feb. 25. Temporary plans for the annual football and basketball banquet were discussed. Both the grade and high school students cooperated with the organization in making this meeting a part of the Washington Bicentennial celebration.

The program consisted of readings, musical numbers and an unusually entertaining play, "The Return of George and Martha," by Edwina Schlegel and Junior Courtwright.

Quite a number of the parents and patrons of the Ashville schools attended the Washington Bicentennial program given in the school auditorium Monday afternoon, Feb. 22.

The students of the Ashville schools are preparing for a state test to be given on the "Life of George Washington." This test will be given some time during the week of Feb. 29th.

The following 8th grade pupils were neither absent nor tardy during the past six weeks: Josephine Cline, Annabelle Flowers, Cora Ruth White, Robert Carley, and Ralph Stevenson.

Annabelle Flowers and Walter Gregg were the winners of the 7th and 8th grade spelling contests held on Washington's Birthday.

The second grade teacher, Miss Fousnaugh, who was ill with the flu, was absent from school last week.

Pupils neither absent nor tardy in the second grade last week were Ruby Meadows, Bobby Cline, Herbert Seymour and Elmer Neri.

Monday afternoon, Feb. 22, the first eight grades gave a most delightful and entertaining program, in honor of Washington's birthday. Many of the parents were present.

This last week the first grade completed their American Flag, which they took for their project.

Lillian Burton, who has been absent for the past four weeks, had her tonsils removed Tuesday of last week.

Junior McGlone is quarantined for scarlet fever.

Jane Stevenson returned to school Monday after an absence of seven weeks.

Pupils of the fifth grade having perfect attendance record are: Lyle Chamberlain, Pearl Tigner, Ernest Martin, Warren Pence, Junior Walters, Jean Brinker.

Miss Elizabeth Cromley, fifth grade teacher has been absent three weeks. Mrs. Louise Cromley is substituting for her.

James Nece will return to school Monday, after an illness of four weeks.

FIFTH GRADE

We made a survey of articles found in our grocery stores, this week. Each person was given one article to report on, some interesting papers were read.

The following numbers were given by the fifth grade at the Washington program Monday: Reading--Jean Brinker; Song--class; Trio--Bessie Hedges, Junior Walters, Ruth Courtwright.

The following seventh grade pupils have neither been absent nor tardy during the month of February: Clyde Alexander, Lloyd Clark, Ruth Courtwright, William Dolby, Byron Gulick, Richard Hoover, Martha Martin, John Myers, Wilbur Neff, Emerson Reid, Chester Rockery, Jr., Russell Sheldon, Jessie Tustin, and George Wharton.

The boys' basketball team elected Arch Ward captain of the 1931-1932 basketball season last week. The following boys were also recommended to receive the varsity A. Arch Ward, captain, Dick Wills, Don Cloud, Maurice Graham, Howard Wellington, Ralph Berry, Glenn Rinehart, Guy Higley, Otis Ford, and Guy Cline.

Our trophy case now holds an additional cup which was won by the girls basketball team last Saturday night when they decisively defeated the Scioto girls, the score being 26 to 18. This makes the second championship in four years for our girls and their won second place in each of the other two years. This is certainly a fine record for the girls and for Mrs. Morrison, the coach.

Due to sickness our February attendance has been the poorest of any month of the year. In the grades the best record was made by Mr. Smith's grade 7, the percentage being 93.4. Miss Petty's third grade had only one tardy mark during the month, which is a real record.

In the high school Mr. Martin's seniors made the best attendance mark which was 93.6, and Mrs. Cooper's juniors the lowest tardy record with 4.

In the county tournament for girls' basketball teams two Ashville girls, Mary Young and Judith Schlegel took first and second honors respectively as high point makers.

WALNUT SCHOOL

An F. F. A. meeting was held Thursday, Feb. 25. Opening exercises were followed by the secretary's report from last meeting. New business was then discussed. The boys decided to help with the program in the April P. T. A. meeting. The president will later appoint a committee to make plans for this program. After the meeting a basketball game was played between Marcy and Walnut F. F. A. Marcy led in the scoring from the beginning to the end of game. Final scores were, Marcy 24 and Walnut 12. Referees were Ralph Reed and Emerson Brown.

Miss Helen Bower's fifth grade has been working on map books which they have made. They drew free-hand maps of the different groups of the United States.

The sixth grade of which Miss Agnes Marshall is teacher, have been making health posters.

The show given February 24th by the Ashville High School, "What to See in Ohio" was a big success. Most of the pupils in the fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth and high school attended it.

During the last week the attendance has been gradually decreasing much below the average on account of the epidemic of bad colds.

Three new cases of scarlet fever have been reported in the school.

The Epworth League of Hedges Chapel presented Mr. R. S. Drum with a leather bill fold and key holder showing their appreciation to him for coaching their play "The Attorney for Defense" which was given in the Walnut auditorium Feb. 4th. There was also a remembrance record signed by each participating in the play.

The basketball game between Monroe and Walnut was in favor of the latter, the score being 25-18. The characters for the Junior class play "A Dumb Waiter" have been chosen. They are Mary Huffer, Louise Runkle, Francis Lander, Thelma Lathouse, Howard Logsdon, Howard Cordray, Lewis Trapp, John Hoover and Charles Brown.

CHILD need REGULATING?

CASTORIA WILL DO IT!

When your child needs regulating, remember this: the organs of babies and children are delicate. Little bowels must be gently urged—never forced. That's why Castoria is used by so many doctors and mothers. It is specially made for children's ailments; contains no harsh, harmful drugs, no narcotics. You can safely give it to young infants for colic pains. Yet it is an equally effective regulator for older children. The next time your child has a little cold or fever, or a digestive upset, give him the help of Castoria, the children's own remedy. Genuine Castoria always has the name:

"POT LIKKER" ADDS MINERALS TO THE DIET

Ham-bone and cabbage may be a homely dish, but it is a good food, says the Bureau of Home Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Served with the "pot-licker," it furnishes several nutrients. With the hot-corn pone that usually goes with this meal, and a fruit of some kind, you have a very cheap, adequate dinner.

Ham-bone gives flavor to a vegetable because there is some meat on the bone and the meat is cured. But the bone itself contributes some food value, according to Dr. Hazel E. Munsell, senior nutrition chemist of the bureau. The same is true of beef soup-bone, except that the flavor is different. Add to the ordinary soup-bone, or beef knuckle, potatoes, onions, tomatoes, green pepper, celery, and carrots or some other yellow vegetable (for vitamins and color).

All these in their liquor, and you have a whole meal in one dish. In the same way, chicken bones or turkey bones, cooked with the left-over parts of the fowl, add value to the chicken hash or turkey hash for a second day's meal.

The reason for cooking the meat with food is to bring out the mineral salts contained in the bones and marrow. Calcium, phosphorus, iron, and several other mineral salts cook out of the bones and dissolve in the cooking water. The cooking water also contains some of the salts and juices of the vegetables that have been cooked with the bones. All these go to make up the "pot-licker."

Mineral salts are necessary in the diet. The body uses calcium, phosphorus, and iron—other minerals, too—for blood and bone and muscle. The baby must have mineral food (milk furnishes most of these) in order to grow. The adult must have them to keep his body in good condition after he has got his growth, for then he must constantly rebuild and repair body tissues. Some minerals, like iodine, have special importance to the glands of the body.

Like various other important constituents, the mineral salts are easily lost with the wrong kind of cooking. On the other hand, they can easily be saved. According to Dr. Florence B. King, in charge of the food utilization laboratory of the Bureau of Home Economics, "to get all the food values of ham-bone and cabbage, or any other meat bone and vegetables, cook the meat bone first. Then add the cabbage, or whatever vegetable you choose, and cook it in the pot liquor, which by this time consists of the cooking water plus whatever minerals, vitamins, and other substances may have been cooked out of the bone, bone marrow, gristle, and meat that was attached to the bone. But cook the vegetable only until it is tender and still firm. It will then get the flavor of the meat and keep the vitamin values which would otherwise be lost, for some of the vitamins are destroyed by long cooking and too much heat. To get full food value the pot liquor should be served along with the meat and vegetables."

NEW SHREDDED BISCUIT EXTRA GOOD WITH HOT MILK

Kellogg's WHOLE WHEAT Biscuits Offer Many Improvements

Kellogg's WHOLE WHEAT Biscuits are especially delightful with hot milk. And many mothers are taking advantage of this in serving a healthful and most convenient breakfast treat these cold mornings.

Before the new Kellogg's WHOLE WHEAT Biscuit was introduced, the Kellogg Company submitted it to the Medical Arts Laboratory of Philadelphia, which found it so rich in food value that every package now carries a certificate.

This means that mothers can now know definitely that their children are getting a well-balanced food whenever they serve the new Kellogg biscuit—extra rich in minerals, vitamins, proteins.

Kellogg's WHOLE WHEAT Biscuits are "pressure-cooked" by a special process that bakes in the delicious flavor. At the same time, it retains all the valuable food elements of the whole wheat.

The biscuits are much crispier and tastier because they are toasted a tempting brown on both top and bottom—not just one side. They are baked in a more convenient, economical size. Two biscuits just fit the cereal bowl—and you get 15 to the package.

Identify this improved cereal by the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

1 tablespoon sugar.
1-4 teaspoon salt.
Scrape the carrots and cut them lengthwise into thin slices. Pare the apples or leave the skin on, as preferred, core, and cut into slices about a fourth of an inch thick. Place a single layer of the apples and the carrots in a large skillet with the fat, cover tightly, and cook until well browned, turn, and brown the other side. Just before the cooking is finished, sprinkle with the sugar and salt. Serve on a hot platter, first a layer of carrots, then a layer of apples, so the two can be lifted together.

VEGETABLE SOUP

1 large soup bone with meat (cracked).
3 quarts cold water.
4 tablespoons fat.
1 green pepper, chopped.
1 cup chopped onion.
1-2 cup chopped celery and leaves.

1 cup diced carrots.
1 cup finely diced turnips.
2 cups finely diced potatoes.
2 cups tomato juice and pulp.
3 teaspoons salt, or to taste.
1-4 teaspoon pepper.
Wash the soup bone and be careful to remove all small loose pieces of bone. Put the bone in a large kettle, cover with the cold water, and simmer for 2 hours. Remove the bone from the broth. Cook all the vegetables, except the tomatoes, in the fat in a skillet for about 10 minutes, stirring frequently. Add the vegetables, tomato, salt, and pepper to the broth and simmer until the vegetables are tender but not broken. Serve the meat with the soup or save it for hash or croquettes.

This makes a rather large quantity of soup, but it is equally good reheated and served another day.

Gets 14 Years for Poisoning Nephew

Mrs. Margaret Summers of Chicago, called the "poison widow," was found guilty Monday night of the murder of her 17-year-old nephew, Thomas Meyer. Her sentence was fixed at fourteen years' imprisonment.

SPEAKER RELATES NATION CONDITION

The cause of the present economic condition and what we can expect for exchange was explained by C. R. Arnold of the Rural Economic department of Ohio State University at the Rotary Club Thursday.

Mr. Arnold has traveled through forty of the states gathering information on this subject and was quite able to talk about conditions.

With several charts to give a detailed picture of past years he explained the reason for the shrinkage of farm revenue at the present time and how it coincides with past years. One chart showed the wholesale price changes since 1910 and how history has been repeated during the present economic condition.

The tariff has had a great part to play in this situation and he explained how this has affected the balance of trade. Farm prices have decreased considerably during the past two years and have shown a greater decrease over the finished product, but this can be attributed to labor and wages that enter into the making of a finished product. Labor prices have not decreased as much as the raw product during this time, he stated.

In closing his talk he said, "In all my travels, Ohio is in much better shape from an agricultural standpoint, than any state that I visited and I believe that when prices change, farm products will be one of the first to go up and Ohio will be in better condition than any other state."

LINDBERGH

BY DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 4.—The kidnapped Lindbergh baby was still in the land of the missing today.

Three long nights and part of a day have passed since 20-month-old Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., was stolen from his nursery crib in his Teddy-bear sleeping suit.

Since then, the hopes of Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, the tortured parents, have risen and fallen, like sweet and bitter heart beats.

A thousand clues have proved futile.

FACE STONE WALL.
Authorities admit they are "up against a stone wall."

The Lindberghs are anxious—eager—pleadingly anxious—to pay the ransom sum demanded by the baby stealers.

But how—when—where?

They have not heard from the kidnapers—or at least among the thousands of notes, letters and communications received they are unable to tell the spurious ones from the one letter they are waiting for.

The famous aviator-father wears his habitual mask of calmness—but underneath he is worried today.

The condition of Mrs. Anne Morrow Lindbergh is that of any mother whose only babe has been taken from her.

Reflecting the attitude of mind of the Lindbergh household, a plea to the kidnapers was broadcast over national radio systems.

"Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh not only wish—but hope—that whoever is in possession of the child will make every effort to communicate with them," the broadcast said.

The presence of a ransom note was officially admitted. It had been left behind in the empty nursery after the kidnapers had snatched the baby from his crib.

CONTENTS TOLD

Its general contents was given out in Trenton as follows:

"The first ransom note left in the room on the night of the kidnapping asked for $50,000.

"It specified that the bills were to be in denominations of one, two, five, ten and twenty dollars. It said that the baby would be well taken care of."

"It was signed with three pen pricks in the paper.
"There were no directions as to how the ransom should be paid and there was no time limit specified."

John J. Toohey, secretary to Governor A. Harry Moore, denied that he had given out the contents of the ransom note.

Among the horde of "crank" letters there were several on hand today which were considered of possible importance.

INTERCEPT CARDS

A postcard, intercepted at Auburn, N. Y., was addressed to Colonel Lindbergh and read:

"Baby taken good care of. Look for instructions Saturday. If police get too close, watch out."

Another postcard mailed to Colonel Lindbergh from South Orange, N. J., read:

"Baby will die."
This card resembled a previous postcard mailed the Colonel from Newark, N. J., last Wednesday.

Both cards were printed in pencil. Both were addressed: "Charles Linberg."

Another missive was mailed from New York and referred to the fate of Frances St. John Smith, who disappeared from Smith College in January, 1929.

Her body was found a year later in the Connecticut river. She was said to have committed suicide.

This letter cautioned secrecy and was of a rambling nature.

There is an average of almost a letter a minute being received by the Lindberghs. The post office department has been asked if it is possible to take some action to discourage the sending of "crank mail" to the flyer.

A modern police headquarters, with radio broadcasting and telephone facilities, was established on the Lindbergh estate to centralize handling of the search for the kidnapers.

One of the first important messages to go over the teletype system was a personal appeal from

Colonel Lindbergh to police of Philadelphia, Atlantic City and Camden to aid in running down a clue.

"I request you make a check of all second-class hotels for the Lindbergh baby," the message read.

NO RESULT, THOUGH

This lead, like the others before it, failed to materialize to date.

Another "tip" reported that a woman with a baby had stepped out of a green monoplane on a farm near Richboro, Pa., entered an automobile and sped away.

It was discovered that such a plane had landed on the reported site but that it contained only the pilot.

Since the kidnapping of Baby Lindbergh last Tuesday night 300 suspects have been questioned by police and released.

Fingerprints of the servants in the Lindbergh household have been taken in order to eliminate them in the search for marks in the vicinity of the home, police explained.

Authorities would neither confirm nor deny that a former Lindbergh employee was being sought for questioning.

WORKMEN CALLED

Witnesses continued to stream into the emergency police headquarters for questioning by troopers. These included many who had worked on the construction of the Lindbergh homestead last fall.

Walter Kelly, contractor of Princeton, N. J., was called in to inspect the material and construction of the make-shift ladder used by the kidnapers in climbing to the nursery on the second-story.

Kelly failed to identify the material although he had previously expressed the belief that the wood in the ladder came from a house he had recently demolished.

The three servants in the house have been questioned repeatedly in the hope that they may be able to recall some piece of information which might aid in solving the crime.

QUESTION EMPLOYEES

The trio are Oliver Wheatley, the Lindbergh's chauffeur-butler, his wife, who is the cook, and Betty Gow, nurse for the baby.

Miss Gow, is a Scotch girl whose history was checked by the Lindberghs before they employed her. She was recommended by Miss Morrow, sister of Mrs. Lindbergh, and has been the only nurse baby Lindbergh ever had.

The search in the vicinity of Princeton line road, leading out of Princeton, so far has failed to produce any results. Feverish activity by troopers in that region was induced from a letter mailed Colonel Lindbergh by "a little old woman" in Boston. The letter gave an address along Province line road as the place where the Lindbergh baby was being kept.

LETTER FOUND IN GRANVILLE

Two Milk Bottles, One From Newark, N. J., Found Near Newark, O., Police Say.

GRANVILLE, O., March 4.—A letter addressed to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and bearing the message "read Ann not to be nervous—everything is okay—give us time," was found in the outgoing mail at the Granville post office here today.

The message contained in the letter was read by holding the letter to the light, it was said.

Following the discovery of the letter in the mails here, police revealed that two empty milk bottles—one bearing a cap with the name of a Newark, N. J., dealer the other with a cap bearing the name of a Johnstown, Pa., dealer, were found on the streets of Newark, O., a nearby city.

Police were notified immediately of the letter and its reputed contents. The letter was believed by post office attaches here to have been mailed about 8:15 o'clock.

Late News Flashes

WASHINGTON, March 4.—A two and one fourth percent manufacturers sales tax designed to raise between $600,000,000 and $625,000,000 a year was overwhelmingly attacked by the house ways and means committee today.

With a decision on this question acting chairman Crist, Democrat of Georgia, said the new tax increase bill may be completed tomorrow.

NEW YORK, March 4.—Charles C. Goodrich, millionaire tire magnate, suffered today from a paralytic stroke which effected his entire right side.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 4.—Forty one persons from Delaware and Madison counties including some of the highest city officials of Muncie and Anderson were indicted by the federal grand jury here today on charges of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law.

COXEY CANDIDATE

COLUMBUS, O., March 4.—Mayor Jacob S. Coxey Sr. of Massillon, veteran "general" of Coxey's army today officially filed his declaration as a candidate for the Republican nomination for president.

Mayor Coxey, who recently announced that he also will be a candidate for U. S. Senator, simultaneously asked Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown to place his name on the presidential primary ballot for use in the April 10 primary.

Odds and Ends

Most of our criminals have "foreign names," but alas, as have most of our record breakers.

When swords are turned into plow shares the same crowd will turn war profits into steel shares.

Men are not always superior to animals. When a dog starts itching he can scratch anywhere.

Watch your reputation. When you lose a good reputation it may take years to find another one.

Note to young men! It's much harder to keep your hands clean when you are determined not to wash them.

Conscience doth make cowards of us all, not to mention members of about half of us.

Money may not mean everything, but almost everything means money.

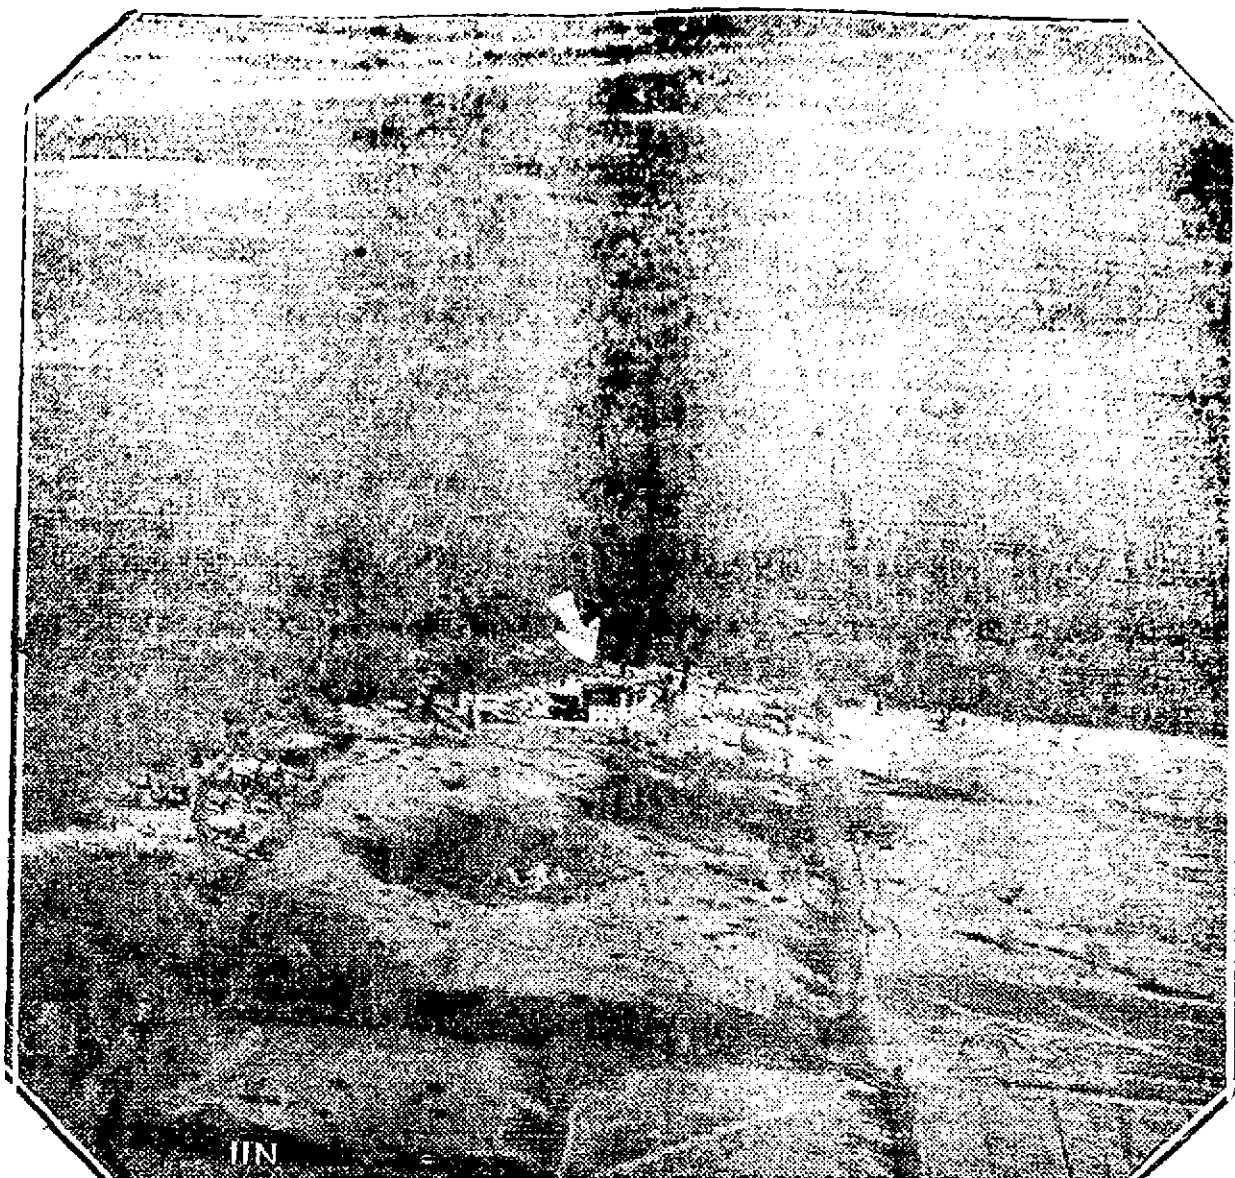

Nothing is certain except the predict.

A great lover is one who can tell whether a girl is worth sleeping.

A self-made man is usually one who relieved a wife that made him work.

Twenty-eight per cent less limestone was used in Ohio for cultural purposes in 1931 than was used in the year before. The tonnage dropped from 233,000 tons to 168,000 tons, or back to the volume that was used about ten years ago.

LINDBERGH HOME ISOLATED FROM OUTSIDE WORLD

Taken from the air, this view of the Lindbergh estate near Hopewell, N. J., plainly shows how isolated it is from the rest of the world. This is where kidnapers successfully stole the infant son of the noted flyer while it slept in its crib.

GOVERNOR'S TAX PLANS

$11,000,000 could be made available to local taxing units by diverting their share of the gasoline and license funds.

80 ARE SATISFIED

The anticipated difference of opinion between the governor and the taxation committee increased doubt as to whether the legislature will be called. The governor reminded mayors who called on him that in 80 counties of the state there is no demand for a special session.

The mayors' plan, so quickly opposed by the governor was adopted unanimously at a conference attended by Mayor Henry W. Worley of Columbus, Nelson C. Sparks of Akron, Ray A. Miller of Cleveland and Addison Q. Thatcher of Toledo and City Managers Fred A. Eichelberger of Dayton, and C. A. Dykstra of Cincinnati.

McDERMOTT AGAIN ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

COLUMBUS, O., March 4.—Exceptionally close watch is being kept at Ohio Penitentiary over Pat McDermott, convicted "trigger man" in the Editor Don M. Mellett murder at Canton in 1926, following the discovery that he has made two new efforts to end his life, it was said today.

McDermott, who was first said to have attempted to hang himself two weeks ago, made two more efforts last Saturday, but in both cases he was prevented from carrying out his wishes by guards.

A noose fashioned from a shirt was used in the first attempt last week. Later he was found dangling to a trunk strap. His condition was not serious enough, it was said, to necessitate his removal to the prison hospital.

Warden Preston E. Thomas would not discuss the latest reports of McDermott's suicide attempts. The first effort, however, was declared by the warden to have been faked.

MARSHALL HELD

Amos Marshall, 32, of Stouts-ville, was being held in the Fairfield-co jail Friday on charges of illegal possession of intoxicating liquor and assault and battery on his father-in-law who filed the charges.

Marshall pleaded guilty in Justice Deffenbaugh's court at Oakland to the liquor charge and was bound over to the grand jury. A gallon jug of whiskey was found in his possession.

JAPS, CHINESE AGAIN FIGHT

One Day's Respite Ended As Both Armies Begin Fire; Chinese To Resist.

SHANGHAI, March 4.—After just one day's cessation of hostilities, Japanese military officers today ordered their forces to attack the Chinese army at two points at which it had resisted during its general retreat.

One of these was at Nanziang, where heavy fighting broke out yesterday and continued today with losses to each side understood to be heavy.

CLASH OCCUR

The other was near Kiating, west of Tachang, where a serious clash occurred today as the Japanese took command of neighboring villages.

Thus, although each side had ordered a halt to fighting yesterday, they found themselves engaged in bitter warfare again with little difference in the situation except that the Chinese were driven well out of the Shanghai territory.

NANKING, March 4.—The Nanking central government has ordered the Chinese Nineteenth route army to continue its resistance, it was announced today.

A denial was made that Nanking had ordered the army to cease hostilities, as reported yesterday. General Tsai Ting-Kai, commander of the Nineteenth route army reported he was resisting the Japanese at Nanziang and near Tachang, and that the Japanese repeatedly attacked his new defense positions.

STRIKE SPREADS

NEW LEXINGTON, O., March 4.—Southern Ohio's coal strike today pushed farther and farther into the important eastern Ohio field.

Prediction that "the Cambridge district will be on strike before the sun goes down Saturday" was made at a mass meeting of strikers last night by Lee Hall of Columbus, president of the United Mine Workers in Ohio.

Cambridge is in Guernsey-co. on the edge of the eastern Ohio field which reaches up into Belmont, Jefferson, Harrison and Carroll counties. Strike activity has not been attempted there for several months.

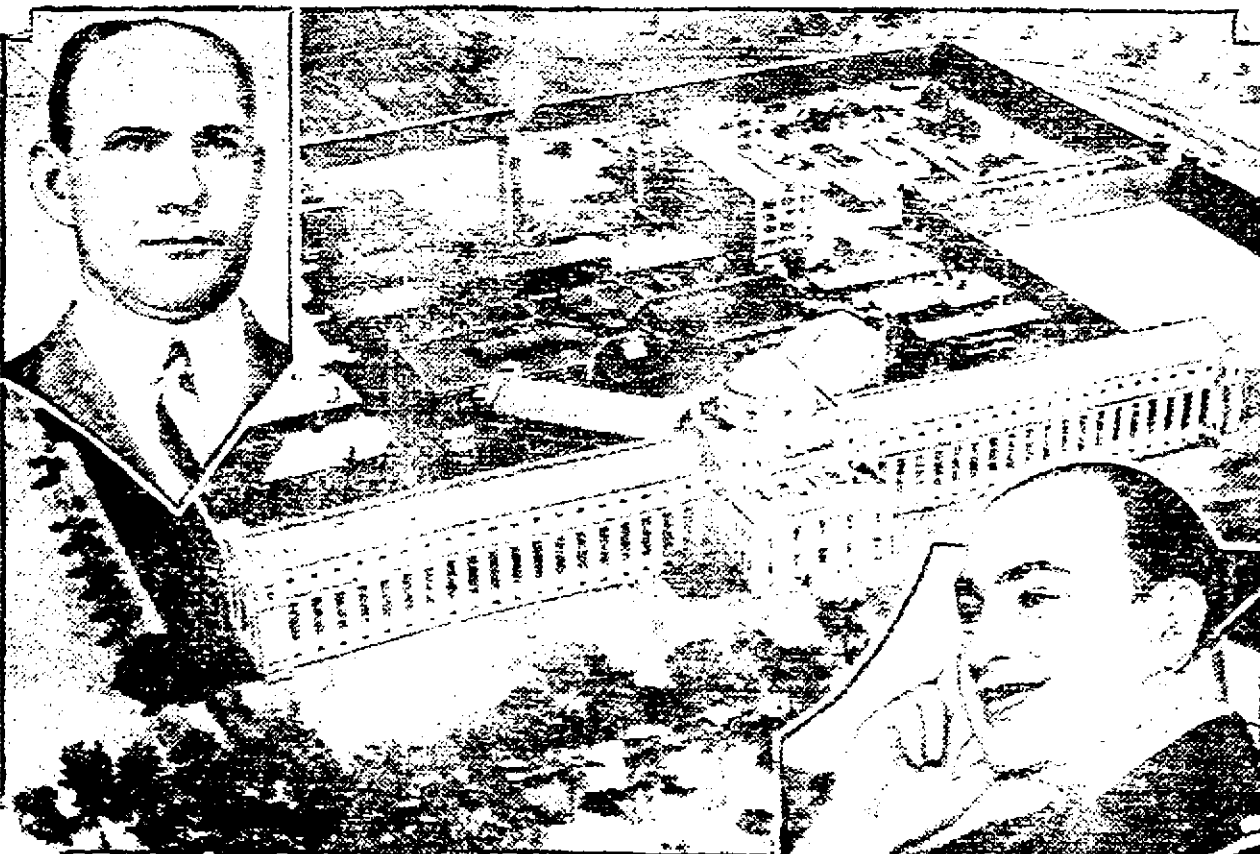

Pride is at the bottom of all great mistakes.—Ruskin.

LAST PHOTOS OF "LONE EAGLE'S" INFANT SON

These photos are the last two taken of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., infant son of the world renowned flyer, who was kidnaped from the Lindbergh estate near Hopewell, N. J. The large photo shows the child sitting in his high chair, and inset, as he appeared just two weeks ago.

Awaiting a Distinguished Guest

Having lost his appeal, Al Capone (right), King of America's racketeers, will leave Cook County Jail in Chicago soon for his journey to the Federal Penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan. (above), where he will start serving his eleven-year sentence for income tax fraud. Al's host-to-be is Fred G. Zerbe (left), newly appointed warden of Leavenworth. He succeeded Warden White, who was badly injured in the prison break last year. The new warden is a veteran 37 years' experience.

The Sexes

WITNESS a little drama. There is a marked-down sale of men's clothes. Every suit is a bargain, and the store is filled with people who wish to buy—nearly all of them men.

A few men stand near the counter, making selections. Many more stand behind them, impatient but well-mannered, awaiting their turn. Any one of them had rather miss a bargain than make a scene.

A dozen or more large women are present, having in two husbands or sons. These dear creatures, impatient of delay, calmly plough through the crowd of waiting men, seize piles of garments and return in triumph to their male property. If they need a clerk to answer questions, they seize one by the arm as he scurries past.

In short, they get service and get it promptly while more men cool their heels.

An unthinking observer would say: "These women are superior to men. They get what they want." The truth is that if any man should begin to elbow his fellows aside in complete disregard of the rules of fairness and good sportsmanship somebody would disarrange his face. Men are courteous to one other because courtesy is the first part of discretion.

A woman can in the language of our day, get away with murder—solely because she is a woman—solely because men of our day, almost without exception, aspire to be gentlemen, and the bedrock of gentility is chivalry.

Chivalry is a ball and chain in competition. Where women are concerned, any man who is reasonable decent pulls his punches.

Eventually women may boss the world by reason of sheer merit. But until chivalry is dead they won't get a chance to show what they can do in a fair fight.

Decline of "Social Call"

LEGION are the sins of the automobile. Blame for undermining the morals of youth is placed at its oft assaulted door. In it the American Empire is said to be declining to its ultimate fall. Paternity of that precocious child, the partial payment plan, is attributed to it by those who see in it a force that is rapidly destroying the once sound economic structure of the nation. Have not boys and girls from the farms driven away in it to the city. Have not moralists and sentimentalists accused it of breaking the home circle? In fact, where is there a so-called social evil of today that this satanic invention hasn't had a hand in?

If it is true that the automobile has brought all these ills upon humanity, it has more than compensated for them by one blessing it has brought. This boon to man kind is the abolition of the ancient and overworked custom of the "social call."

Anyone who attempts to find an old friend "at home" in this automotive age comes sharply to a realization of the utter futility of trying to be neighborly and sociable. To those so hopelessly old-fashioned as to go "calling" on a sunny Sunday afternoon the houses of the village must seem as deserted as Goldsmith's "Sweet Auburn" loveliest village of the plain.

What pangs of unsuppressed curiosity the ladies of gossip must suffer in this area when the new family in the neighborhood is never "at home" to callers at times when it is perfectly proper for a member of the auxiliary to call! And with this once constant threat of an unannounced visit from Mrs. Pecksniff down the street and this incentive for domestic tidiness and extravagance in household furnishings removed, is there not grave danger of that predicted deterioration of the home?

Motoring has usurped the place of the "afternoon call" as the great Sunday pastime of the nation.

Courtship, New Style

COURTSHIP, real and imaginary, have always been a matter of community interest, although usually carried on with more or less secrecy and in sweet seclusion, but aviation threatens to place them, from the exhibition viewpoint, on a par with the traveling circus.

In interior Pennsylvania a young Lochinvar of the air flew in out of the West to land in his plane in the backyard of his lady fair that he might woo her of an evening in the solitude of the domestic scene. Like so many plans of mice and men his went astray.

Thousands of neighbors, townspeople and travelers poured into the backyard and home of the lady fair to see the winged lover and his plane.

Making love under such handicaps is about as satisfying as the love-making engaged in by lovers

"The GAY BANDIT of the BORDER" by TOM GILL

SYNOPSIS

Young and handsome Ted Radcliffe arrives at Verdi, a Mexican border town, as the search for "El Coyote," the notorious masked bandit, is at its height. "El Coyote" avenges the outrages perpetrated by the wealthy and powerful Paco Morales against the peons. Ted learns from Bob Harkness, his late father's friend, that Morales was responsible for Radcliffe Senior's failure, but Bob urges him not to make an enemy of Morales as he has other plans. Ted is attracted to Morales' beautiful niece, Adela. "El Coyote" sends his lieutenant to urge the ranchers to join him in overthrowing Morales.

CHAPTER XIII

Absolute hush fell. From out of the darkness sounded the clink of a horse's hoofs on the flagstones. Slowly a powerful white horse emerged from among the shadows, and a rider, masked and muffled in a heavy cloak, rode into the patio. Twice he circled around the death-like silence, then raised a gloved hand high in silent greeting.

The spell of silence snapped. Like a single voice rose the great deep chorus of men's voices, shouting wild welcome to this leader of the border band. The night thundered with the sound, the little cantina trembled, and far out over the desert rolled the cheers of these men of the Mexican border, pledging life and loyalty to the unknown leader. For long minutes the shouts echoed and redoubled, filling the patio, rising, it seemed, to the very stars; then silently the masked man turned his horse and like some incorporeal shadow faded back into the velvet night.

Slowly the multitude grew silent and turned once more expectant faces to the speaker.

His voice held an exultant ring. "Men of the border, you have answered. Go back now to your ranches and haciendas, be of good courage, and wait for word. No man can make slaves of a free people. Go back to your homes and be very sure that each day brings nearer the time when the clouds of Morales' power will be forever scattered."

He raised his arm in farewell and rode out into the desert.

Dawn was touching the mesa with silver when a solitary horseman dismounted and hurried inside the hacienda of Paco Morales.

At his desk the old Spaniard raised his eyes. "What news, Jito?" he asked.

"They held a meeting. Two of my men were there. They are making ready to attack."

"Attack? Those insolent dogs."

"Si. They say they are tired of defending. Soon they will strike. But my greatest news is this—El Coyote himself was there."

"Caramba! What did he look like? Was he recognized?"

Jito hesitated. "No. He rode his great white horse. He spoke no word, they say, and yet"—again he hesitated—"It may be we shall still find out, my uncle."

"You have an idea?"

"A thought only, not worth the speaking. But be sure of this, my uncle, we must end El Coyote's life or your power over the land is lost forever."

Morales nodded. "Life is a matter of stern necessities. He shrugged his shoulders. "After all, there are so many lives in the world."

Ted and Bob were leaving for the great fiesta of Paco Morales—the Fiesta of the Rains.

From the foothills to the north horizon all the desert world had burst into bloom that April day.

"They held a meeting. Two of my men were there. They are making ready to attack."

A soft haze touched the Mexican hills with the promise of returning spring, while slowly the two men jolted over the rutted road.

At the end of an hour Bob pointed. "Beyond that edge of the mesa is the hacienda of our all-powerful Don Paco Morales," he said.

Radcliffe threw away his cigarette. "And at the rate we're crawling it will be Sunday a week before we get there."

"Try to beat twenty miles an hour over this Mexican cow trail and see how many springs you have left. Besides, why all this gesture of impetuous youth? You're being blessed with my company and the world's sunshine. Why so eager for the journey's end? Any special reason?"

Ted laughed. "You're worse than the major's wife with your genial way of inferring possibilities. Should I blush becomingly and say, 'Don Bob, I have a confession. I'm longing to see the lady Adela'?"

"Maybe. And maybe your smoke screen is fooling me completely. It's a question."

Ted's face grew thoughtful. "Well, part of the truth is I'm eager to see Morales again. It may be interesting to be the guest of the man who ruined my father and changed my life as profoundly as he did."

"Morales will give no sign of all that."

"Suppose I make him?"

"How?"

"By talking about it. What would you say if I ask his advice?"

Bob looked searchingly at Radcliffe, then nodded. "Worth trying. But remember, you're dealing with one of the keenest of brains of Mexico. Life is a game of chess to Morales. I think he could easily beat both of us at intrigue. But talk to him. You may gain something, perhaps."

"And in my present condition it's hard to see how I could lose anything in the world today—except," Radcliffe added in a lower voice, "your friendship. I could never afford to lose that. I haven't forgotten how much that's meant to me."

Don Bob looked at the tanned face and the clear steady eyes. "What a precious thing youth is," he said at last. "Youth and courage." After a moment he added, "That's my manner of saying that I'm proud of the way you've taken it all."

"There was no other way."

"Oh yes. You might have been bitter. You might have played the martyr. Or you might have sworn revenge."

"And what makes you think I haven't plans for revenge?"

"Have you?"

The little car bumped along for a time before the boy answered. "When I listened to Price I felt I'd like to break the power of that octopus—to send him out penniless and divide his million acres among the peons. I'd like to grind his chief bully's face into this sand. Just now it would give me a lot of satisfaction to do those things. Is that revenge, Don Bob?"

"Well, it's a distinctly unfriendly feeling toward one's host. Also, it sounds a bit like El Coyote's ambition. But look ahead of you."

There, just before them, where the road turned at the edge of the mesa, loomed a tall granite cross. It cast its long shadow across the road, standing out dark and austere against the blue vault of the sky. The only sign of man's handiwork out there on the rim of the desert.

For a time Bob's eyes were fixed in meditation. "The Cross of the Conquerors," he murmured at last. "It is the symbol of man's life, that cross. Hundreds of years ago it was erected by those fighting Spaniards who made a nation of this country. No one knows what it commemorates. There was an inscription once, but winds and sand have obliterated it."

"What is that long slab at the base?"

"It covers an empty vault—empty except for shifting sands. That, too, is part of its mystery. In the days when the peons were owned as slaves a legend grew up that this vault was to be the resting place of some awaited liberator of the people. Well, they were liberated, so far as laws go—but their lot hasn't greatly changed—and the vault still remains empty."

"OLEO" IN WISCONSIN

MADISON, Wis.—Sale of oleomargarine has practically been wiped out in this dairy state as a result of a long fight in the legislature. There are only 12 places where it can be purchased legally, against 5,192 retailers of the butter substitute a year ago. Most of the retailers have quit handling it rather than take out a state license with heavy fees. With the high state tax on the substitute, oleomargarine has been put into the same price class as butter.

Theatres

AT THE CLIFTONA

Jackie Cooper knows little about a real spanking, but there are times when he may be classed as one of the most habitual early retires among children. Being sent to bed is his greatest punishment.

This is revealed by his mother, Mabel Cooper, as Jackie arrives on the Cliftona Theatre screen today and tomorrow for a continuation of his "Skippy" character in a new Paramount Percy Crosby creation, "Sooky."

Her report on Jackie's chastisement was prompted by his continual statements of what "lickings" are in store for him if he does something.

"Jackie has never been really spanked beyond a few spats where they did most good," the youthful mother says. "That is because he really wouldn't mind a spanking but loathes being sent to bed."

"Being a kid, he is always open to this punishment."

"I think the worst thing he ever did, was when he kicked his football in the parlor after being warned not to, and the ball collided with a vase which my mother had cherished for 30 years. That finished the vase."

"When mother and I rushed into the room in response to the crash, Jackie was rapidly undressing."

"But," interpolates the young film star, "I told you all I was awful sorry. I offered all my salary to pay for the vase."

AT THE GRAND

Thomas Meighan knocked out Hardie Albright in "Young Sinners," the Fox picture in which they portrayed featured roles but now in "Skyline," Meighan's second Fox production, Tom is staggered by a right hook to the jaw from his former victim.

Albright stages one real fist battle in "Skyline," current sensational Fox success at the Grand Theatre. He goes at it rough and tumble with his foster father in the cabin of a barge in East River, New York.

The difficulty between Albright and Meighan is brief, but his fight with Stanley Fields, who plays the captain of the barge, is of longer duration, and highly sensational while it lasts.

"A half a peanut gives one sufficient energy for an hour of concentrated thinking." We had been under the impression that there was a larger consumption for peanuts.

To Try Her Wings

This eye-pleasing aviatrix is Loma Worth, who, off the stage, is the daughter of the late Jake L. Hamon, multi-millionaire oil magnate, who was slain ten years ago by his "affinity." Miss Worth recently passed the physical test before the Department of Commerce at Los Angeles in the preliminary examination for her pilot's license.

They've Never Tasted a Tonic!

THESE are not patent medicine children. Their appetite needs no coaxing. Their tongues are never coated, cheeks never pale. And their bowels move just like clockwork, because they have never been given a habit-forming laxative.

You can have children like this—and be as healthy yourself—if you follow the advice of a famous family physician. Stimulate the vital organs. The strongest of them need help at times. If they don't get it, they grow sluggish. Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin is a mild, safe stimulant.

When a youngster doesn't do well at school, it may be the liver that's lazy. Often the bowels hold enough poisonous waste to dull the senses! A spoonful of delicious syrup pepsin once or twice a week will avoid this. It contains fresh laxative herbs, active senna, and pure pepsin, and does a world of good to any system—young or old. You can always get this fine prescriptive preparation at any drug store. Just ask them for Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin.

Get some syrup pepsin today, and protect your family from those bilious days, frequent sick spells and colds. Keep a bottle in the medicine chest instead of cathartics that so often bring on chronic constipation. Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin can always be employed to give clogged bowels a thorough cleansing, with none of that painful griping, or burning feeling afterward. It isn't expensive.

LEGION are the sins of the automobile. Blame for undermining the morals of youth is placed at its oft-assaulted door. In it the American Empire is said to be declining to its ultimate fall. Paternity of that precocious child, the partial-payment plan, is attributed to it by those who see in it a force that is rapidly destroying the once sound economic structure of the nation. Have not boys and girls from the farms driven away in it to the city? Have not moralists and sentimentalists accused it of breaking the home circle? In fact, where is there a so-called social evil of today that this satanic invention hasn't had a hand in?

If it is true that the automobile has brought all these ills upon humanity, it has more than compensated for them by one blessing it has brought. This boon to man kind is the abolition of the ancient and overworked custom of the "social call."

Anyone who attempts to find an old friend "at home" in this automotive age comes sharply to a realization of the utter futility of trying to be neighborly and sociable. To those so hopelessly old-fashioned as to go "calling" on a sunny Sunday afternoon the houses of the village must seem as deserted as Goldsmith's "Sweet Auburn" loveliest village of the plain.

What pangs of unsatisfied curiosity the ladies of gossip must suffer in this area when the new family in the neighborhood is never "at home to callers" at times when it is perfectly proper for a member of the auxiliary to call. And with this once constant threat of an unannounced visit from Mrs. Pecksniff down the street and this incentive for domestic tidiness and extravagance in household furnishings removed, is there not grave danger of that predicted deterioration of the home?

Motoring has usurped the place of the "afternoon call" as the great Sunday pastime of the nation.

Courtship, New Style

COURTSHIP, real and imaginary, have always been a matter of community interest, although usually carried on with more or less secrecy and in sweet seclusion, but aviation threatens to place them, from the exhibition viewpoint on a par with the traveling circus.

In interior Pennsylvania a young Lochinvar of the air flew in out of the West to land in his plane in the backyard of his lady fair that he might woo her of an evening in the solitude of the domestic scene. Like so many plans of mice and men his went awry.

Thousands of neighbors, townspeople and travelers poured into the backyard and home of the lady fair to see the winged lover and his plane.

Making love under such handicaps is about as satisfying as the love-making engaged in by lovers in this office for ticket.

"The GAY BANDIT of the BORDER"

by TOM GILL

COPYRIGHT 1931 BY INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE CO., INC. — DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

SYNOPSIS

Young and handsome Ted Radcliffe arrives at Verdi, a Mexican border town, as the search for "El Coyote," the notorious masked bandit, is at its height. "El Coyote" avenges the outrages perpetrated by the wealthy and powerful Paco Morales against the peons. Ted learns from Bob Harkness, his late father's friend, that Morales was responsible for Radcliffe's father's failure, but Bob urges him not to make an enemy of Morales as he has other plans. Ted is attracted to Morales' beautiful niece, Adela. "El Coyote" sends his lieutenant to urge the ranchers to join him in overthrowing Morales.

CHAPTER XIII

Absolute hush fell. From out of the darkness sounded the clink of a horse's hoofs on the flagstones. Slowly a powerful white horse emerged from among the shadows, and a rider, masked and muffled in a heavy cloak, rode into the patio. Twice he circled around the death-like silence, then raised a gloved hand high in silent greeting.

The spell of silence snapped. Like a single voice rose the great deep chorus of men's voices, shouting wild welcome to this leader of the border band. The night thundered with the sound, the little cantina trembled, and far out over the desert rolled the cheers of these men of the Mexican border, pledging life and loyalty to the unknown leader. For long minutes the shouts echoed and redoubled, filling the patio, rising, it seemed, to the very stars; then silently the masked man turned his horse and like some incorporeal shadow faded back into the velvet night.

Slowly the multitude grew silent and turned once more expectant faces to the speaker. His voice held an exultant ring. "Men of the border, you have answered. Go back now to your ranches and haciendas, be of good courage, and wait for word. No man can make slaves of a free people. Go back to your homes and be very sure that each day brings nearer the time when the clouds of Morales' power will be forever scattered."

He raised his arm in farewell and rode out into the desert. Dawn was touching the mesa with silver when a solitary horseman dismounted and hurried inside the hacienda of Paco Morales.

At his desk the old Spaniard raised his eyes. "What news, Jito?" he asked.

"They held a meeting. Two of my men were there. They are making ready to attack."

"Attack? Those insolent dogs?" "Si. They say they are tired of defending. Soon they will strike. But my greatest news is this—El Coyote himself was there."

"Caramba! What did he look like? Was he recognized?" Jito hesitated. "No. He rode his great white horse. He spoke no word, they say, and yet—again he hesitated—'It may be we shall still find out, my uncle.'"

"You have an idea?" "A thought only, not worth the speaking. But be sure of this, my uncle, we must end El Coyote's life, or your power over the land is lost forever."

Morales nodded. "Life is a matter of stern necessities. He shrugged his shoulders. 'After all, there are so many lives in the world.'"

Ted and Bob were leaving for the great fiesta of Paco Morales—the Fiesta of the Rains.

From the foothills to the north horizon all the desert world had burst into bloom that April day.

"They held a meeting. Two of my men were there. They are making ready to attack."

A soft haze touched the Mexican hills with the promise of returning spring, while slowly the two men jolted over the rutted road.

At the end of an hour Bob pointed. "Beyond that edge of the mesa is the hacienda of our all-powerful Don Paco Morales," he said.

Radcliffe threw away his cigarette. "And at the rate we're crawling it will be Sunday a week before we get there."

"Try to beat twenty miles an hour over this Mexican cow trail and see how many springs you have left. Besides, why all this gesture of impetuous youth? You're being blessed with my company and the world's sunshine. Why so eager for the journey's end? Any special reason?"

Ted laughed. "You're worse than the major's wife with your genial way of inferring possibilities. Should I blush becomingly and say, 'Don Bob, I have a confession. I'm longing to see the lady Adela?'"

"Maybe. And maybe your smoke screen is fooling me completely. It's a question."

Ted's face grew thoughtful. "Well, part of the truth is I'm eager to see Morales again. It may be interesting to be the guest of the man who ruined my father and changed my life as profoundly as he did."

"Morales will give no sign of all that."

"Suppose I make him?" "How?"

"By talking about it. What would you say if I ask his advice?"

Bob looked searchingly at Radcliffe, then nodded. "Worth trying. But remember, you're dealing with one of the keenest brains of Mexico. Life is a game of chess to Morales. I think he could easily beat both of us at intrigue. But talk to him. You may gain something, perhaps."

"And in my present condition it's hard to see how I could lose anything in the world today—except," Radcliffe added in a lower voice, "your friendship. I could never afford to lose that. I haven't forgotten how much that's meant to me."

Don Bob looked at the tanned face and the clear steady eyes. "What a precious thing youth is," he said at last. "Youth and courage." After a moment he added, "That's my manner of saying that I'm proud of the way you've taken it all."

"Oh yes. You might have been bitter. You might have played the martyr. Or you might have sworn revenge."

"And what makes you think I haven't plans for revenge?" "Have you?"

The little car bumped along for a time before the boy answered. "When I listened to Price I felt I'd like to break the power of that octopus—to send him out penniless and divide his million acres among the peons. I'd like to grind his chief bully's face into this sand. Just now it would give me a lot of satisfaction to do those things. Is that revenge, Don Bob?"

"Well, it's a distinctly unfriendly feeling toward one's host. Also, it sounds a bit like El Coyote's ambition. But look ahead of you."

There, just before them, where the road turned at the edge of the mesa, loomed a tall granite cross. It cast its long shadow across the road, standing out dark and austere against the blue vault of the sky. The only sign of man's handwork out there on the rim of the desert.

For a time Bob's eyes were fixed in meditation. "The Cross of the Conquerors," he murmured at last. "It is the symbol of man's life, that cross. Hundreds of years ago it was erected by those fighting Spaniards who made a nation of this country. No one knows what it commemorates. There was an inscription once, but winds and sand have obliterated it."

"What is that long slab at the base?"

"It covers an empty vault—empty except for shifting sands. That, too, is part of its mystery. In the days when the peons were owned as slaves a legend grew up that this vault was to be the resting place of some awaited liberator of the people. Well, they were liberated, so far as laws go but their lot hasn't greatly changed—and the vault still remains empty."

"OLEO" IN WISCONSIN

MADISON, Wis.—Sale of oleomargarine has practically been wiped out in this dairy state as a result of a long fight in the legislature. There are only 12 places where it can be purchased legally, as against 5,192 retailers of the butter substitute a year ago. Most of the retailers have quit handling it rather than take out a state license with heavy fees. With the high state tax on the substitute, oleomargarine has been put into the same price class as butter.

Rheumatoid Arthritis May End in Disability

Painful, Swollen Joints Mark This Malady, Which May Arise from Any Kind of Infection, and Often Leads to Some Lasting Deformity

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York.

Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

RHEUMATOID ARTHRITIS is a chronic disease that attacks the joints. It is followed by a marked tendency to permanent stiffness and deformity of the affected parts.

The cause is supposed to be an infection. But the most careful research often fails to locate the exciting cause. Heredity may possibly enter into the problem in some cases.

There is no doubt that poor health from any cause has a powerful influence upon the tendency to develop this disease. Young adults—even children—as well as the old and those of middle life, are liable to suffer from the malady. Some cases, influenza, pneumonia, scarlet fever, measles, and other infectious diseases may precipitate the attack. More commonly chronic infections of the teeth, tonsils, ears, throat, nose, middle ear, gall bladder or appendix may be found to be responsible.

The first we eat is changed into products useful for the needs of the body, and the waste substances are eliminated. In general terms, this is a process referred to as the "metabolism" of the body. Any of the articular with this balance is often associated with joint disturbances. The blood and other of the glands have also been under suspicion as factors in arthritis.

At times the involved joints seem to become practically normal. They remain so until later attacks cause permanent deformity and disability. Rheumatoid arthritis has been widely studied by scientists, but so far no universal cure has been discovered.

The first step is to discover and do away with all areas of infection. When the joints have not yet been seriously involved, the procedure may have a happy effect, but where deformity and loss of function are present, I am sorry to say, no treatment can restore the joints to a normal state.

But may effect some improvement. Limiting the intake of starches and taking a liberal supply of cream, milk and cod liver oil are measures which have improved the condition of many a patient.

General hygiene measures are always in order. Activity of the skin should be promoted by frequent bathing. The sufferer should drink an abundance of water to secure action of the kidneys. Regular evacuation of the bowels is important.

Various measures have been found valuable in some cases. Adequate protection of the skin from changes of weather and the consequent danger of chilling is essential. Sunbathing and fresh air and hydrotherapy are recommended.

Various have helped some patients, while a great many drugs have been tried with varying success. Complete rest of the inflamed joints must be insisted upon until all pain on motion has subsided.

They've Never Tasted a To

These are not patent medicine children. Their appetite needs no coaxing. Their tongues are never coated, cheeks never pale. And their bowels move just like clockwork, because they have never been given a habit-forming laxative.

You can have children like this—and be as healthy yourself—if you follow the course of a famous family physician. Stimulate the vital organs. The strongest of them need help at times. If they don't get it, they grow sluggish. Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin is a mild, safe stimulant.

When a youngster doesn't do well at school, it may be the liver that's lazy. Often the bowels hold enough poisonous waste to dull the senses! A spoonful of delicious syrup pepsin

Get some syrup pepsin! protect your family from biliousness, frequent colds, and colic. Keep a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin on hand. It's often the cause of constipation. Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin can always be given to give clogged bowels a cleansing, with none of the griping, or burning effect. It isn't expensive.

LINDBERGH

BY DAVID P. SENTNER

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 4.—The kidnapped Lindbergh baby was still in the land of the missing today.

Three long nights and part of a day have passed since 20-month-old Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., was stolen from his nursery crib in his Teddy-bear sleeping suit.

Since then, the hopes of Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, the tortured parents, have risen and fallen, like sweet and bitter heart beats.

A thousand clues have proved futile.

FACE STONE WALL

Authorities admit they are "up against a stone wall."

The Lindberghs are anxious—eager—pleadingly anxious—to pay the ransom sum demanded by the baby stealers.

But how—when—where?

They have not heard from the kidnapers—or at least among the thousands of notes, letters and communications received they are unable to tell the spurious ones from the one letter they are waiting for.

The famous aviator-father wears his habitual mask of calmness—but underneath he is worried today.

The condition of Mrs. Anne Morrow Lindbergh is that of any mother whose only babe has been taken from here.

Reflecting the attitude of mind of the Lindbergh household, a plea to the kidnapers was broadcast over national radio systems.

"Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh not only wish—but hope—that whoever is in possession of the child will make every effort to communicate with them," the broadcast said.

The presence of a ransom note was officially admitted. It had been left behind in the empty nursery after the kidnapers had snatched the baby from his crib.

CONTENTS TOLD

Its general contents were given out in Trenton as follows:

"The first ransom note left in the room on the night of the kidnapping asked for $50,000.

"It specified that the bills were to be in denominations of one, two, five, ten and twenty dollars. If said that the baby would be well taken care of.

"It was signed with three pen pricks in the paper.

"There were no directions as to how the ransom should be paid and there was no time limit specified."

John J. Toohey, secretary to Governor A. Harry Moore, denied that he had given out the contents of the ransom note.

Among the horde of "crank" letters there were several on hand today which were considered of possible importance.

INTERCEPT CARDS

A postcard, intercepted at Auburn, N. Y., was addressed to Colonel Lindbergh and read:

"Baby taken good care of. Look for instructions Saturday. If police get too close, watch out."

Another postcard mailed to Colonel Lindbergh from South Orange, N. J., read:

"Baby will die."

This card resembled a previous postcard mailed the Colonel from Newark, N. J., last Wednesday.

Both cards were printed in pencil. Both were addressed:

"Charles Lindbergh."

Another missive was mailed from New York and referred to the fate of Frances St. John Smith, who disappeared from Smith College in January, 1923.

Her body was found a year later in the Connecticut river. She was said to have committed suicide.

This letter cautioned secrecy and was of a rambling nature.

There is an average of almost a letter a minute being received by the Lindberghs. The post office department has been asked if it is possible to take some action to discourage the sending of "crank mail" to the flyer.

A modern police headquarters, with radio broadcasting and teletype facilities, was established on the Lindbergh estate to centralize handling of the search for the kidnapers.

One of the first important messages to go over the teletype system was a personal appeal from

Colonel Lindbergh to police of Philadelphia, Atlantic City and Camden to aid in running down a clue.

"I request you make a check of all second-class hotels for the Lindbergh baby," the message read.

NO RESULT, THOUGH

This lead, like the others before it, failed to materialize to date.

Another "tip" reported that a woman with a baby had stepped out of a green monoplane on a farm near Richboro, Pa., entered an automobile and sped away.

It was discovered that such a plane had landed on the reported site but that it contained only the pilot.

Since the kidnapping of Baby Lindbergh last Tuesday night 300 suspects have been questioned by police and released.

Fingerprints of the servants in the Lindbergh household have been taken in order to eliminate them in the search for marks in the vicinity of the home, police explained.

Authorities would neither confirm nor deny that a former Lindbergh employe was being sought for questioning.

WORKMEN CALLED

Witnesses continued to stream into the emergency police headquarters for questioning by troopers. These included many who had worked on the construction of the Lindbergh homestead last fall.

Walter Kelly, contractor of Princeton, N. J., was called in to inspect the material and construction of the make-shift ladder used by the kidnapers in climbing to the nursery on the second-story.

Kelly failed to identify the material although he had previously expressed the belief that the wood in the ladder came from a house he had recently demolished.

The three servants in the house have been questioned repeatedly in the hope that they may be able to recall some piece of information which might aid in solving the crime.

QUESTION EMPLOYEES

The trio are Oliver Wheatley, the Lindbergh's chauffeur-butler, his wife, who is the cook, and Betty Gow, nurse for the baby.

Miss Gow, is a Scotch girl whose history was checked by the Lindberghs before they employed her. She was recommended by Miss Morrow, sister of Mrs. Lindbergh, and has been the only nurse baby Lindbergh ever had.

The search in the vicinity of Province line road, leading out of Princeton, so far has failed to produce any results. Feverish activity by troopers in that region was induced from a letter mailed Colonel Lindbergh by "a little old woman" in Boston. The letter gave an address along Province line road as the place where the Lindbergh baby was being kept.

LETTER FOUND IN GRANVILLE

Two Milk Bottles, One From Newark, N. J., Found Near Newark, O., Police Say.

GRANVILLE, O., March 4.—A letter addressed to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and bearing the message "tell Ann not to be nervous—everything is okay—give us time," was found in the outlying mail at the Granville post office here today.

The message contained in the letter was read by holding the letter to the light, it was said.

Following the discovery of the letter in the mails here, police revealed that two empty milk bottles—one bearing a cap with the name of a Newark, N. J., dealer the other with a cap bearing the name of a Johnstown, Pa., dealer, were found on the streets of Newark, O., a nearby city.

Police were notified immediately of the letter and its reputed contents. The letter was believed by post office attaches here to have been mailed about 8:15 o'clock.

A great lover is one who can tell whether a girl is pensive or sleepy.

A self-made man is usually one who selected a wife that made him work.

Twenty-eight per cent less limestone was used in Ohio for agricultural purposes in 1931 than was used in the year before. The total tonnage dropped from 233,000 tons to 168,000 tons, or back to the volume that was used about ten years ago.

LINDBERGH HOME ISOLATED FROM OUTSIDE WORLD

Taken from the air, this view of the Lindbergh estate near Hopewell, N. J., plainly shows how isolated it is from the rest of the world. This is where kidnapers successfully stole the infant son of the noted flyer while it slept in its crib.

$11,000,000 could be made available to local taxing units by diverting their share of the gasoline and license funds.

80 ARE SATISFIED

The anticipated difference of opinion between the governor and the taxation committee increased doubt as to whether the legislature will be called. The governor reminded mayors who called on him that in 80 counties of the state there is no demand for a special session.

The mayors' plan, so quickly opposed by the governor was adopted unanimously at a conference attended by Mayor Henry W. Worley of Columbus, Nelson C. Sparks of Akron, Ray A. Miller of Cleveland and Addison Q. Thatcher of Toledo and City Managers Fred O. Eichelberger of Dayton, and C. A. Dykstra of Cincinnati.

M'DERMOTT AGAIN ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

COLUMBUS, O., March 4.—Exceptionally close watch is being kept at Ohio Penitentiary over Pat McDermott, convicted "trigger man" in the Editor Don M. Mellett murder at Canton in 1926, following the discovery that he has made two new efforts to end his life, it was said today.

McDermott, who was first said to have attempted to hang himself two weeks ago, made two more efforts last Saturday, but in both cases he was prevented from carrying out his wishes by guards.

A noose fashioned from a shirt was used in the first attempt last week. Later he was found dangling to a trunk strap. His condition was not serious enough, it was said, to necessitate his removal to the prison hospital.

Warden Preston E. Thomas would not discuss the latest reports of McDermott's suicide attempts. The first effort, however, was declared by the warden to have been faked.

MARSHALL HELD

Amos Marshall, 32, of Stoutsville, was being held in the Fairfield-co jail Friday on charges of illegal possession of intoxicating liquor and assault and battery on his father-in-law who filed the charges.

Marshall pleaded guilty in Justice Deffenbaugh's court at Oakland to the liquor charge and was bound over to the grand jury.

A gallon jug of whiskey was found in his possession.

JAPS, CHINESE AGAIN FIGHT

One Day's Respite Ended As Both Armies Begin Fire; Chinese To Resist.

SHANGHAI, March 4.—After just one day's cessation of hostilities, Japanese military officers today ordered their forces to attack the Chinese army at two points at which it had resisted during its general retreat.

One of these was at Nanziang, where heavy fighting broke out yesterday and continued today with losses to each side understood to be heavy.

CLASH OCCUR

The other was near Kiating, west of Tachang, where a serious clash occurred today as the Japanese took command of neighboring villages.

Thus, although each side had ordered a halt to fighting yesterday, they found themselves engaged in bitter warfare again with little difference in the situation except that the Chinese were driven well out of the Shanghai territory.

NANKING, March 4.—The Nanking central government has ordered the Chinese Nineteenth route army to continue its resistance, it was announced today.

A denial was made that Nanking had ordered the army to cease hostilities, as reported yesterday. General Tsiang Kai, commander of the Nineteenth route army reported he was resisting the Japanese at Nanziang and near Tachang, and that the Japanese repeatedly attacked his new defense positions.

STRIKE SPREADS

NEW LEXINGTON, O., March 4.—Southern Ohio's coal strike today pushed farther and farther into the important eastern Ohio field.

Prediction that "the Cambridge district will be on strike before the sun goes down Saturday" was made at a mass meeting of strikers last night by Lee Hall of Columbus, president of the United Mine Workers in Ohio.

Cambridge is in Guernsey-co. on the edge of the eastern Ohio field which reaches up into Belmont, Jefferson, Harrison and Carroll counties. Strike activity has not been attempted there for several months.

Pride is at the bottom of all great mistakes.—Ruskin.

LAST PHOTOS OF "LONE EAGLE'S" INFANT SON

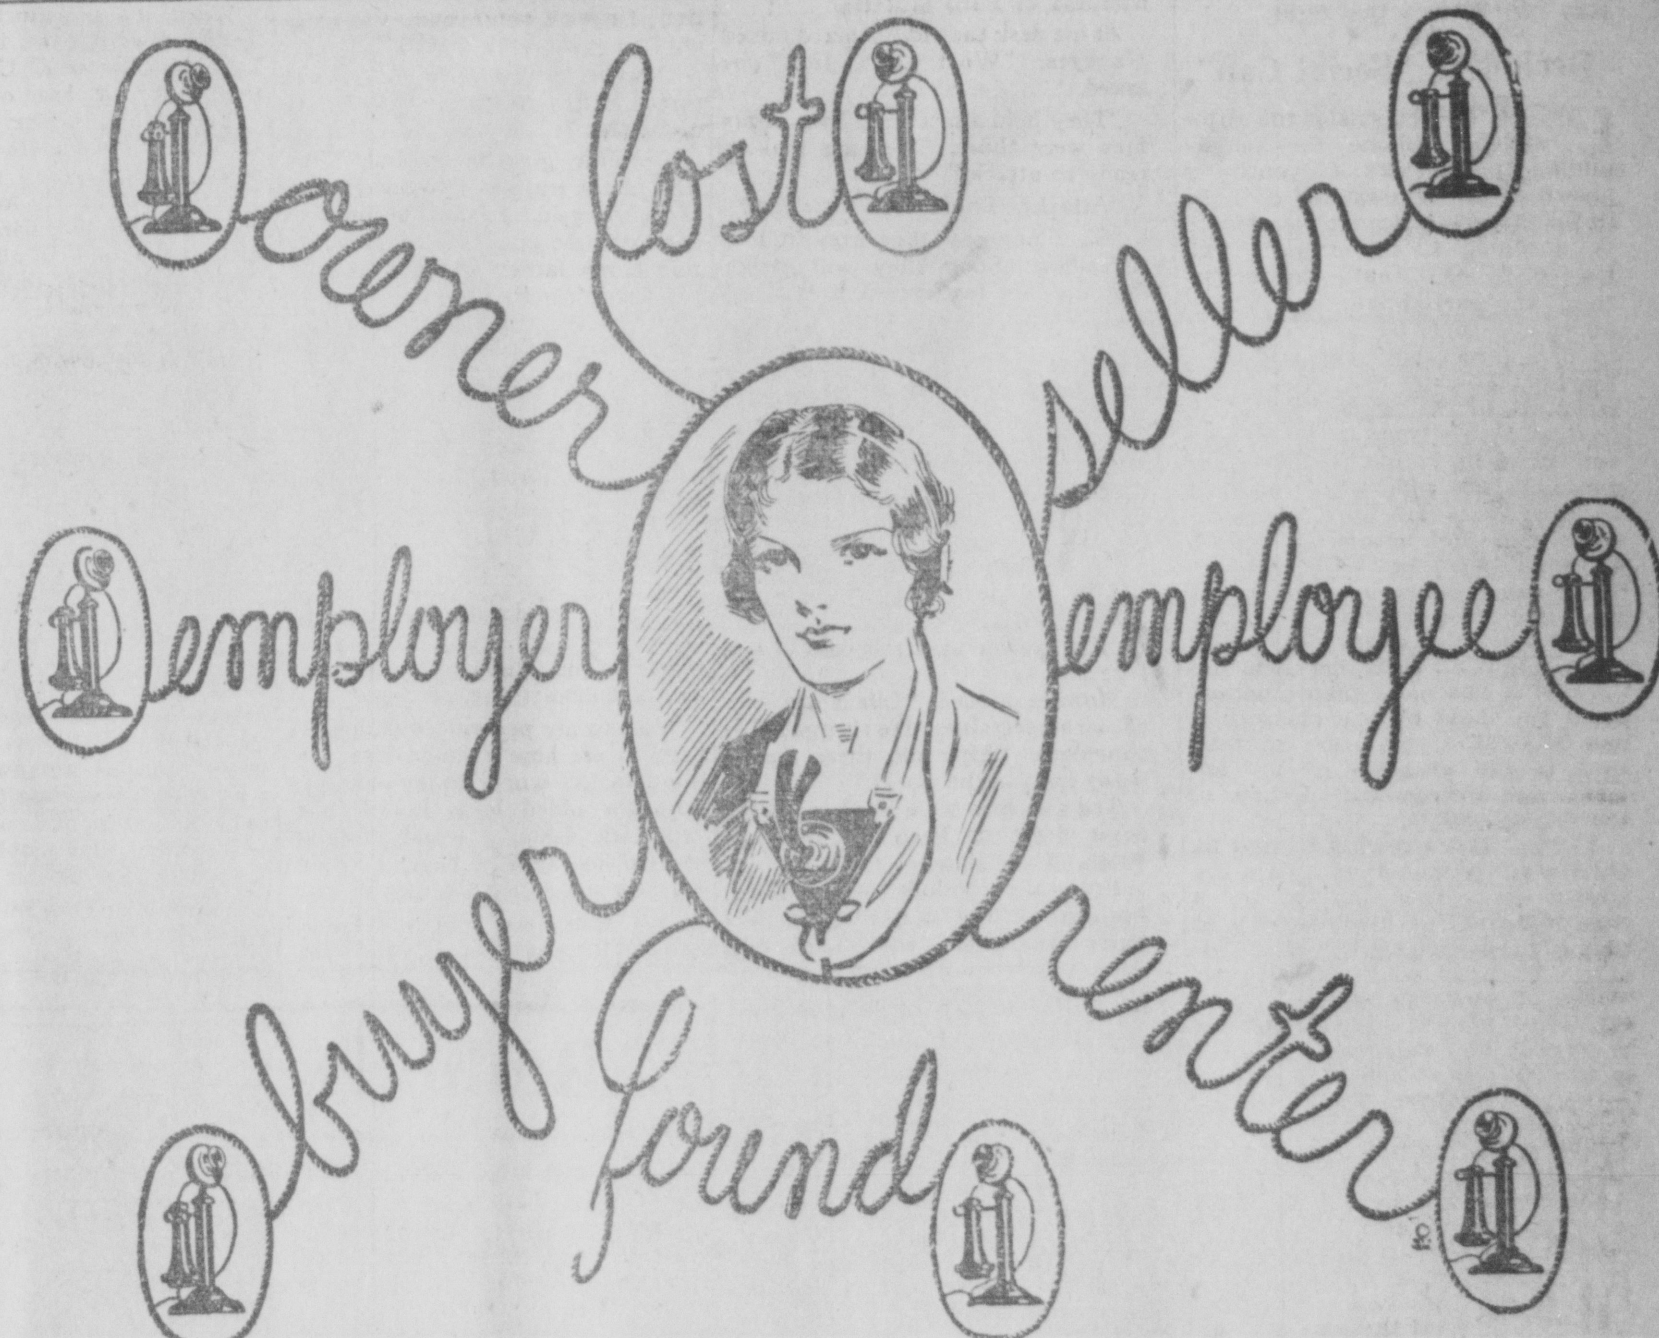

These photos are the last two taken of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., infant son of the world renowned flyer, who was kidnapped from the Lindbergh estate near Hopewell, N. J. The large photo shows the child sitting in his high chair, and inset, as he appeared just two weeks ago.

Awaiting a Distinguished Guest

Having lost his appeal, Al Capone (right), king of America's racketeers, will leave Cook County Jail in Chicago soon for his journey to the Federal Penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan. (above), where he will start serving his eleven-year sentence for income tax fraud. AP's host-to-be is Fred G. Zerbet, (left), newly appointed warden of Leavenworth. He succeeded Warden White, who was badly injured in the prison break last year. The new warden is a veteran of 37 years' experience.

TIGERS PRIMED FOR DELAWARE GAME

Ernie Carlisle's Quintet Again
Barrier in Path of Local Red and Black.

BEGIN AT 3:30 P. M.

Starting Lineups To Be Same
As Last Week.

The Circleville Tigers, champions of the Central Buckeye league, will again be tested to the limit Saturday at 3:30 p. m. at Edwards gym on the Ohio Wesleyan campus at Delaware when Ernie Carlisle's Delaware quintet will again furnish opposition. Instead of being for the C. B. L. title as the contest a week ago was ticketed, this fray will be the right to continue in the district class A tournament.

The winner of the contest will tangle with the winner of the Columbus South-Columbus-West and Grandview - Marion Harding scraps.

POWER IS KNOWN
The strength of the Delaware team is well known. The fighting ability of Heinlein, Sell, Bright and the other boys on the Delaware-co team is well established in the minds of the local court squad. Flushed by taking the Central Buckeye title the Tigers might be threatened with a degree of over-confidence before this basketball contest but that is not the case.

In the practice session held this week Coach Herberholz has driven his boys through their paces in an effort to eliminate any over-confidence that might exist. The sweaters of the Red and Black known might well that the turn back Delaware again means that every effort must be expended.

TWO OFFICIALS
The game will be the first played Saturday afternoon and will be officiated by Staton Jones and Joel Burghalter.

YANKEES, ATHLETICS FAVORED TO CONTEST FOR A. L. TITLE

NEW YORK, March 4.—Release of two sets of betting odds on the 1932 major league pennant race discloses that there exists throughout the country a growing respect for the prowess of Joe McCarthy's New York Yankees.

While in the middle west the Athletics are again poked to beat out the New Yorkers, Wall Street has installed the Yanks slight favorites to break the three-year domination of the Mackmen in the American league.

The two sets of figures for the American league race follow.

Team	Western	Teams	Eastern
Odds
Athletics	1	Yankees	5
Yankees	3	Athletics	3
Washington	4	Washington	3
Cleveland	8	Cleveland	10
Detroit	40	Browns	25
Browns	50	Detroit	40
Red Sox	100	White Sox	75
White Sox	100	Red Sox	100

It will be noted that there is a difference of opinion regarding the chances of every club except Washington and Cleveland.

CARDS FAVORED
In the National league, there is a striking similarity of opinion, the ranking of all eight clubs being the same in both sets of odds with the St. Louis Cardinals picked to repeat. The figures follow:

Cardinals	1
Giants	2
Brooklyn	3
Cubs	4
Pittsburgh	10
Braves	40
Phillies	50
Cincinnati	100

Last year the Cubs nosed out Brooklyn by 3 1-2 games. The experts figure that the acquisition of Hack Wilson, Waite Hoyt and Manager Max Carey by the Dodgers will more than offset the addition to Brooklyn of Grimes to the pitching staff of the Cubs.
The Braves are picked to advance one notch in the standing. Maybe the purchase of Art (Whitman) Shires is the answer.

Last Night's Fights

At London—Larry Gains, Canadian negro, won heavyweight championship of British Empire by outpointing Don McCorkindale, South Africa (15).

At Bridgeport, Conn.—Jack Delaney, former light-heavyweight champion knocked out Phil Johnson, Jersey City, heavyweight (21).

At Waterbury, Conn.—George Courtney, Oklahoma light heavyweight, outpointed Al Garner, New Haven, Conn. (10).

Sailor Kentz, New York knocked out Joe Shelby, New Britain, Conn. (5).

At Fort Wayne, Ind. Giff Walker Dayton O welterweight stopped Harold Anthony, Dayton (5).

Ernie Maurer, Detroit, stopped Ed Tromp, Dayton featherweight (6).

Ed Koop, Detroit light weight stopped Louis Haines, Toledo (5).

Petitions Asking Vets' Pay Filed

WASHINGTON, March 4—Petitions representing between 3,000,000 and 5,000,000 people have reached Washington asking complete payment of soldier's adjusted service certificates. Rep. Wright Patman (D) of Texas, said today.

All congressional records for the number of signers and organizations to petitions have been broken, he added.

A portion of the bales of petitions gathered through the disabled American veterans and veterans of the World War have already been presented to congress as the prelude to the fight for payment.

With disposition of the tax increase bill next week, the House ways and means committee will hold a hearing on Patman's cash payment bill.

"These petitions represent veterans organizations of all kinds, including 300 American Legion posts of my own state," said Patman. "Chambers of Commerce and similar civic and trade organizations of hundreds of cities, chiefly the smaller cities and towns, are included."

Complete cash payment, Patman said, would require $2,236,949,300. There are 3,600,000 certificates outstanding.

Senator Thomas (D) of Oklahoma has launched a fight for cash payment in the senate. Patman proposes the bonus be paid by issuing currency, backed by 40 per cent government gold and the government's obligation to pay the certificates in 1945 as security. This, he said, is substantially the plan of the Glass-Steagall banking bill, which permits issuance of federal reserve notes against 40 per cent gold and government obligations.

Almost invariably it takes two to make a quarrel. Only once in a great while does a man like Mr. Borah come along who can disagree among himself.

Congress' tax program is easy on the motorist. It includes new levies on cars, gasoline and oil, only.

Inaugurate President

gressive or regular, has declined to contest with him.

But as easy as the president's political path is with regard to nomination there are nevertheless imposing obstacles ahead of him, and some weighty decisions to be made. One such concerns the party attitude toward prohibition.

It is now considered virtually certain that the Republicans at Chicago will stage a bitter fight over prohibition. And the prediction is freely made in responsible Republican quarters that the convention will adopt at least a referendum plank in their platform.

WHAT? PROHIBITION In the present session of congress the Republicans have revealed themselves as badly split over prohibition as the Democrats perhaps more so. In the International News Service poll of Congress in December 81 Republican members of the house announced their intention of supporting a referendum, as compared with 73 Democrats. In the petition just signed in Congress to compel a vote on resubmission there were 76 Republican names and 69 Democratic names.

Prominent and influential Republicans from the eastern states are becoming more and more insistent that the Republican platform this year contain some sort of wet plank. They privately assert they are going to Chicago and fight for it whether Mr. Hoover likes it or not.

Moreover, it is an open secret in Washington that half of the cabinet has been urging upon the president, a modification of his hitherto strongly dry position.

Postmaster General Brown, who is expected to be one of the guiding figures in Mr. Hoover's campaign for re-election, has been the most persistent of these cabinet advisors urging a change in policy. He has been in contact with wealthy Republican wets who in increasing numbers are reported to be refusing to make any campaign contributions this year to a dry candidate running on a dry platform.

Fifteen miscellaneous articles given were: mattress, blankets, curtains, coat hangers and several other things.

The Cheer Up club had three meetings during the month according to the report.

NEEDS OUTLINE Some urgent needs of the organization are a coal cook stove, dresses for 6-months-old babies, chairs and a single bed or cot.

Petitions Asking Vets' Pay Filed

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Petitions representing between 3,000,000 and 5,000,000 people have reached Washington asking complete payment of soldier's adjusted service certificates, Rep. Wright Patman (D) of Texas, said today.

Almost invariably it takes two to make a quarrel. Only once in a great while does a man like Mr. Borah come along who can disagree among himself.

Benevolent Organization Makes February Report

The February report of Miss Clara Southward, social worker of the Circleville Benevolent Association shows that a large number of needy persons were aided during the past month.

A total number of 142 calls were made and there were 157 office interviews and 19 consultations with applicants according to the report.

INFORMATION GIVEN
Other interesting information given in the report follows:

56 phone calls received; four letters received and 11 cards written.

Donations of food and clothing were received from three organizations seven individuals and the J. C. Penny Co.

Thirty-seven pairs of boys' shoes were received from the state.

Food supplies from the city cottage were given to 32 families; from Methodist church given to six families and bread from Business and Professional Women's Club given to eight families; soap was also given to eight families.

The clothing, etc., given to 55 families and two "travelers", included, 22 pairs of shoes; 37 pairs of stockings; 15 pairs of socks; 162 other garments for men, women, boys and girls which included underwear, coats, vests, trousers, shirts, ties, gowns, dresses and other things.

Fifteen miscellaneous articles given were a mattress, blankets, curtains, coat hangers and several other things.

The Cheer Up club had three meetings during the month according to the report.

NEEDS OUTLINE
Some urgent needs of the organization are a coal cook stove, dresses for 6-months-old babies, chairs and a single bed or cot.

gal banking bill, which permits issuance of federal reserve notes against 40 per cent gold and government obligations.

But as easy as the president's political path is with regard to nomination, there are nevertheless imposing obstacles ahead of him, and some weighty decisions to be made. One such concerns the party attitude toward prohibition.

It is now considered virtually certain that the Republicans at Chicago will stage a bitter fight over prohibition. And the prediction is freely made in responsible Republican quarters that the convention will adopt at least a referendum blank in their platform.

WHAT? PROHIBITION
In the present session of congress the Republicans have revealed themselves as badly split over prohibition as the Democrats, perhaps more so. In the International News Service poll of Congress in December 31 Republican members of the house announced their intention of supporting a referendum, as compared with 73 Democrats; in the petition just signed in Congress to compel a vote on resubmission there were 76 Republican names and 69 Democratic names.

Prominent and influential Republicans from the eastern states are becoming more and more insistent that the Republican platform this year contain some sort of a wet plank. They privately assert they are going to Chicago and fight for it whether Mr. Hoover likes it or not.

Moreover, it is an open secret in Washington that half of the cabinet has been urging upon the president, a modification of his hitherto strongly dry position.

Postmaster General Brown, who is expected to be one of the guiding figures in Mr. Hoover's campaign for re-election, has been the most persistent of these cabinet advisors urging a change in policy. He has been in contact with wealthy Republican wets who in increasing numbers are reported to be refusing to make any campaign contributions this year to a dry candidate running on a dry platform.

How One Woman Lost 10 Lbs. in a Week
Mrs. Betty Luedke of Dayton writes: "I am using Kruschen to reduce weight—I lost 10 pounds in one week and cannot say too much to recommend it!"
To take off fat easily, SAFELY and HARMLESSLY—take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—it is the safe way to lose unsightly fat and one bottle lasts 4 weeks costs but a trifle. If this first bottle fails to convince you this is the safest way to lose fat—money back.
But be sure and get Kruschen. Sales—imitations are numerous and you must safeguard your health.

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S TRAVELS

Dear "Prince William County Court House of the day", he crossed "Cedar Run", a rock-ledge stream which flows near the village, and came out upon what is now U. S. Route 211 which leads from Washington, D. C., through Warrenton to New Market, Virginia.

For more than a century and a half the "Belvoir" of Washington's character forming days—the "Belvoir" of his ardent youth—has been but a memory. From this site, on U. S. Route 1, below Alexandria, he set out upon surveying expeditions in the Shenandoah Valley at the age of sixteen. Ferrying over the Occoquan River at the right, he soon plunged into forest trails leading toward the Blue Ridge Mountains.

ENTIRE NATION AIDS IN SEARCH FOR TOT OF FAMOUS COUPLE

NEW YORK, March 4.—The entire American nation was galvanized today into action to hunt by air, by land, by sea, for the abductors of the world's best beloved baby, Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr.

Federal, state and local authorities threw all their mighty resources into the unprecedented vast and alert pursuit of the criminals, while citizens everywhere constituted themselves detectives seeking some trace of the baby or its kidnapers.

Modern mechanical aids were linked to the huge man power mobilized in following clues, however scanty, in watching railroad terminals, airports, bridges, highways, ferries and crossing points along the Canadian and Mexican borders.

STOP AUTOMOBILES

Especially in the east, since the famous baby of the famous flying Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh was taken from his crib at Hopewell, N. J., thousands of automobiles were halted, searched and the occupants made to identify themselves.

Federal secret service agents entered on "Lindbergh Duty" on orders of President Hoover. Coast guard units watching for the kidnapers along the Atlantic and the Great Lakes.

Radio, television, radio teletype alarms, were impressed into service.

In New York, Police Commissioner Mulrooney promulgated an extraordinary order to his force of nearly 20,000 policemen and detectives to join the intense pursuit of the kidnapers with the greatest vigor and to stay on duty "around the clock" until the baby is found.

HOTELS SEARCHED

All those who entered or left the city by train or tube or ferry or automobile were carefully scrutinized. "Baby farms," hotels, lodging houses, were visited by searchers in the hope of unearthing some new clue to the Lindbergh baby.

Airplanes circled aloft over wide areas of New York, Penn., New Jersey and other states, often with famous pilots at the controls who hoped to spot some suspicious looking car or in isolated "hide-away" which might harbor the abductors and the world's most famous child.

Major Frank M. Nicholas, commander of state police in Connecticut, ordered every man out of barracks and on duty in the hunt. Similar action was taken by Mayor John A. Warner, superintendent of New York state police, at Albany.

Throughout New England, the roads from New York were placed under specially heavy guards. Virginia, South Carolina, Indiana and other southern and middle western states enlisted in the efforts to capture the kidnapers. In many places, the American Legion instructed its posts to help.

For the first time, a New York radio station kept open all night broadcasting latest developments in the case which has stirred the entire event as no other modern occurrence except perhaps the news of the Armistice after the World War.

Three different photographs of the Lindbergh baby were televised, marking the first time that this latest modern marvel was used in a man hunt.

Broadcasting stations also carried the appeal of Mrs. Lindbergh, transmitted by Governor Moore of New Jersey, that whoever has the baby protect him against ill health.

A special diet to which Charles Augustus Jr. is accustomed was given over the air for the guide of the kidnapers in feeding him.

A special fleet of airplanes flew over the Lindbergh home and experts made aerial photographs of the whole region surrounding the dwelling.

"Winter" General Theme Of Brotherhood Meeting

"Winter," the general theme of the January, February and March group at the Lutheran Brotherhood was put over in a snappy, entertaining manner with plenty of fun and unique features, Thursday evening.

E. C. Ebert, R. L. Brehmer and George C. Griffith were directors, the latter acting as master of ceremonies.

A winter scene and snow covered cedar trees furnished a good setting. The program opened with a parade of the entire company singing "Hail, Hail the Gang's All Here." George C. Griffith gave the opening talk followed by a song by eight men, E. C. Ebert, Cliff Reichelderfer, John Walters, Walter Eecard, Christian Schwarz, Frank Mason, Ludwig Haecker, and Charles Titus each singing an original verse, "Why I Like Winter."

Next followed the show of the evening when Dan Eitel and George Cook put on a skit, "The Bum in a Restaurant." R. L. Brehmer, acting as physical director, next put the group through its daily dozen in "Bend Down Sisters." Christian Schwarz, violin, and Carl Seitz, piano, gave a rendition of "Ah Sweet Mystery of Life."

Another group sang with more motions than music gave "John Brown's Baby." Another unique feature was the boxing match between Old King Winter, Robert Brehmer, and the Coal Man, Luther List, with John Walters as timekeeper and Ludwig Haecker as referee.

Charles Titus next put on a Parade of Events." He gave an original poem, each verse being impersonated by a fellow member. W. C. Baum, as "Father Time" was very real, Christian Schwarz as "The New Year" took the prize.

Luther List as the Lion Tamer and R. L. Brehmer as the Lion was a fitting climax.

A 10 minute talk on "Winter" by R. L. Brehmer was followed by the closing chorus by the entire company, "Keep on Smiling" and "Jingle Bells."

Carl Seitz was accompanist for the entire program. A snow storm and sometimes nearly a blizzard gave a realistic touch.

The five judges, D. L. Buchanan, E. I. Gephart, J. O. Eagleson, Fred Watts and Glen Geib were present.

The next program "Spring" by the April, May and June group, under the direction of Dr. Troutman, George Himrod and Charles Walters will be given March 17.
